

FLIGHT PROGRAMS

The “Youth Soaring Camps” are offered each summer. These intensive week-long programs are limited to six students. Each student receives daily flight instruction in gliders and ground school.

The “Flight Line Crew Program” includes a flight line crew chief, an assistant and two student trainees. This program familiarizes the student with airport operations around people and aircraft.

The “Youth Incentive Program” provides financial assistance for young pilots who have achieved their solo gliding certificates. Financial assistance is based on their need and commitment to obtaining a private pilot license.

SUGARBUSH SOARING

The Sugarbush Soaring Association is a gliding club of some one hundred members. The Club has operated at the Warren-Sugarbush Airport for more than twenty-five years. It has a fleet of gliders and tow planes. The soaring operation is active from early May until the end of October. More than twenty members have their own gliders on the field. The Association annually host nationally-sanctioned glider competition at the airport. In addition, The members and staff offer scenic rides and flight instructions for the general public.

The Association provides all of the services needed for “Flight Experience For Youth.” These services include use of all the instructional gliders, tow planes, instructors, line crew, and administrative staff. Club members also volunteer their time toward the success of the youth programs.

HISTORY

Previous youth who have participated in the flight programs have gone on to the Air Force Academy or to careers in aviation. Other young participants have matured through their experience and moved on to professional careers while continuing to maintain a strong interest in aviation.

MISSION

The “Flight Experience For Youth” mission is to give students the opportunity to experience the world of flight. By so doing they have opportunity to build self esteem, self confidence and self reliance. This 501 (c) 3 program offers a challenge for aspiring youth to experience a potential profession and gain a degree of individual accomplishment and responsibility. These are vital building blocks for any future career.
